WRAPPED IN NATURE

Jackson Hole's JH Builders offers discerning clients quality custom homes built on a foundation of top-of-the-line materials and craftsmanship

In an environment where Wyoming's magnificence draws people from all over the world, JH Builders fits right in. Since its founding in 2009, this Jackson Hole-based team of construction experts has earned a reputation for crafting bespoke homes where every detail is born of deep creativity and collaboration.

"My partners and I came to this work from a variety of backgrounds and skill sets," explains Andrew Miller, an owner of JH Builders. "In addition to our shared passion for building homes, we bring experience in architecture, accounting, finance, and construction project management to every home we build."

JH Builders' breadth of expertise translates into powerful, creative collaboration with architects and designers from coast to coast. Enduring partnerships with clients are cultivated by the team to build unparalleled homes that mimic the landscape of Teton County, Wyoming, and Teton Valley, Idaho.

CLOCKWISE FROM TOP: A large outdoor living space features a dining table, fireplace, and gathering place. Floor-to-ceiling windows allow for natural light to flood this hallway. Natural tones and wood beams bring the outside into this seating area. Indoor-outdoor living is at its finest with a kitchen that flows seamlessly into a seating area that abuts the pond.

"Our clients are accomplished individuals," says Miller. "Whether a client is hands-on during the build or not, we utilize our construction management process to tailor each detail of a home to a client's wants."

The JH Builders team constructs homes that last by using cutting-edge building science coupled with hardy, natural materials—stone, metal, glass, and thermally modified wood. Despite the harsh weather of the northern Rocky Mountains, JH Builders' homes will be around for the long haul, reflecting the rugged world that surrounds them.
